

Journal of

Clinical and Analytical Medicine

Vol: 9 No: 4 July 2018

Are gastrointestinal stromal tumours really asymptomatic?

Emre A, Sertkaya M

Contents;

- Urine iodine deficiency in pregnant women living in Sivas
- Which site is least painful during intravenous cannulation?
- A tomographic evaluation of the tuffier line in patients with hip fracture
- Effectiveness of the mulligan mobilization technique in mechanical neck pain
- Burnout level of nurses working in a hospital
- Neglected monteggia fracture-dislocations in children
- Sedation in pediatric magnetic resonance imaging: a ten-year experience
- How to calculate levothyroxine dosage after total thyroidectomy
- Effect of sugammadex and neostigmine on tracheal muscle: In vitro study
- Gastric adenomyoma determined incidentally during sleeve gastrectomy: A case report
- Anesthesia management for ALS and WPW